Subject: Electoral review for Buckinghamshire

You recently invited Parish Councils to comment on the proposed size of Buckinghamshire County Council and I am writing to confirm that Stokenchurch Parish Council would support the Commission's proposal to reduce the County Council membership to 49 members.

On the issue of the location of the electoral division boundaries, the Councillors were unsure where the current boundaries run as we do not have a definitive map and some Members doubted the accuracy of the O. S. map. For example, it is alleged that a house called "Pophleys" in City Road, Radnage was transferred to the Parish of Radnage in the last Boundary Review, yet our Members are not clear whether it is still in our Parish. Are you able to provide a definitive map showing existing boundaries?

I should be grateful for your advice
