Comment text:

Private communities pay thousands of pounds to local government, yet they do not enjoy privacy, a right to manage their land, a right to avoid traffic ingress due to legal breach of duty of care by local road users. To top it all they are then represented by large "public communities eg Daws Hill Neighborhood Group" who have never involved the this private association to take account of our needs and face very different issues, yet are represented by such public community groups. I am the Chairman of the School Close Road Association HP11 1 PH. We are the most under supported and highest contributors per resident home in High Wycombe, by density that I am aware of. We pay high rates, enjoy no right of exit from our road, we pay for our roads and have to put up with not in my back year development objections. If that is not enough, put road is a free car park and drop off point for local school traffic which has been largely mismanaged for years. Overall I can say having been a resident for over 20 years , I have seen no fair or proportional representation for private community interests. So by forming new "boundaries" what will you do for the private communities that councils so love to market yet so loath to support effectively or proportionally to their issues?
