I am afraid that if you are expecting this exercise to be helpful, you may be very disappointed. It is presented as an opportunity for people to make a difference, but in reality the parameters are fixed: the same number of councillors as at the moment and equal voting areas. The remainder is a technical exercise that you would expect to be undertaken by civil servants and local authority staff. There is no option to reduce the number of councillors, there are no options in respect of possible boundaries. What can I say other than prepare a proposal that meets your pre-consultation expectations?
