Buckinghamshire Council comprises 49 wards; each with three councillors. With a future population estimated at 600,000 and a manageable total of 15,000 residents per ward, there should be a total of 40 wards. 50% of the wards would have a density of population sufficient to require one Buckinghamshire Councillor per ward; the other 50%, more widely spread geographically, would require two councillors; requiring a total of 60 Buckinghamshire councillors.
