I live in quelm park currently, on Hebbecastle Down/Atte Lane. It is well known in Bracknell that the cost of houses in warfield are significantly higher than in Priestwood, not only did we buy our house while the housing market was up, with a boundary move to priestwood, I expect the house value to be effected significantly, what will be done to ensure residents are compensated for this or better still, protected? We deliberately saved and paid a premium in order to live in Warfield, as it has a better reputation in terms of safety and crime. Rather than change the boundary, why not create a new area for the jealotts hill site, as was done with jennetts park? I am very frustrated by this and do not want our house value to be impacted, there are thousands of people in quelm park who I'm sure also chose warfield for its reputation, and as previously stated, paid more for it! More should be done to ensure warfield residents are aware of this proposal and can share their views, it's unacceptable for this to go under the radar.
