I have lived in Wick for forty years. I'm fortunate to live in such a nice village. With regard s to the proposal to integrate Wick with Pershore as part of the boundary commission initiative it is wholly wrong. Wick is a rural village m, and Pershore whilst a great town , is exactly that. The indivdual requirements are fundamentally different. In the current climate of instability it's vital to maintain Wicks independent voice and protect the uniqueness of the village for future generations, from an independent and political perspective. In summary I object to the proposed integration.
