I moved to Wick in 1986 and married into a farming family in 1988. Although I spend 18 of the intervening years living in the village of Cropthorne, we are now living in the farmhouse in Wick. In 2014, I set up a Care Farm at the farm which is now a community interest company and a separate business from the farm. I feel very strongly that we should remain part of the Fladbury parish. This has worked well since I have been here and feel represented by Councillors who have understood village life and rural issues, including running rural businesses. Wick is a thriving community with a large number of community groups including a group which has recently consulted all residents to find out more about our concerns. Pershore has a Town Council which deals with a much larger population than Wick with very different concerns and so if we joined Pershore, we would be under represented. Please keep the boundaries the same so we continue to be in a rural area.
