This proposal of splitting the Mackie Ave estate from the rest of Patcham takes no account of the physical setting of the area. The only access to the estate is via Patcham, with its school and village centre and Church all closely linked. I believe Patcham and Hollingbury should stay together in one Ward as this is the natural grouping for the area, with the valleys and roads running East to West, not North to South. We are a part of Patcham, and to try to say we are part of Carden and Hollingbury which are in a different valley / hill system and not the whole area of Patcham does not make any sense.
