Comment text:

Having lived in Patcham my entire life I cannot think of a worse decision than to split the village apart. Not only will it begin the breakdown of what is a very longstanding village culture but it also ruins its identity. Additionally it moves the school from the centre of an area to the very edge ruining the balance and potentially any catchment/lottery decisions for students. I'm not the best at putting my thoughts into words but I strongly object to this idea.
