Comment text:

I find the splitting of the boundaries of Patcham, completely unnecessary and unwanted. Patcham is a close, united community, which has absolutely no need to be cut in two. Westdene is it's own separate area, as is Hollingbury. The existing boundary line of Carden Hill entirely makes sense to be left as it is. The Mackie estate would be cut off from the rest of the community and using Warmdene road as the boundary line is ridiculous as it is the road that runs next to Patcham high school and Patcham junior school. I am not in support of this and it is not something that is wanted.
