The proposed changes to boundaries are absolutely madness and show that those drawing up plans have absolutely no idea of what Patcham is like.

The whole of the Mackie estate and the Ladies Mile Road focuses down to The Ladies Mile crossroads near the Ladies Mile Pub, and hence towards the Old London Road junction.

Everyone living in this area considers that they definitely live in Patcham as opposed to Westdene or Hollingbury . Patcham is a geographically cohesive community and any changes would be detrimental to the area.

What is the rationale behind the proposed changes to the boundaries?
