Comment text:

Currently the village of Meon vale is split between two parishes. This means that local issues are managed by two separate bodies. Meon Vale should be it's own parish or at least moved in long marston. Once the new estate to the south of the village is built the situation will be worse as the village will be split between two county councils, two districts councils and three parishes. The sooner all parts of Meon vale moved under one council and parish the better.
