Good, it is about time the number of DCC Councilors was revied. It is claimed that local democracy is important and yet DCC take very little if any notice of the views of residents. There are too many who are able to control the direction of the County without any real consideration of the impact their decisions have on local residents. Hopefully, if the number is reduced the Councilors elected will actually want to represent both their individual Wards but also have some consideration for the County as a whole rather than simply follow Party dogma. By reducing the number of Councilors and standardising the number and mix of residents they represent the County as a whole may actually be better and more equitably represented.
