Comment text:

Having discussed with the parish council we feel wilbarston would be best served having a rural ward as the issues in the local towns bear no resemblance to the issues that face the villages. However accepting that this is unlikely to be possible in order to optimise population numbers then we would be best served having a local ward of Desborough with as many villages as possible in it so that all of the villages are served under one ward rather than scattered about to balance the numbers in other wards. For example - we have much more in common with Cottingham, and Middleton, and East Carlton than they do with corby. Likewise somewhere like Gretton or Harringworth. While geographically they naturally fit to Corby in terms of dealing with local issues it makes no sense. Put all the villages north of Kettering into one ward with Desborough (assuming you need enough extra population) to make sure that there is proper representation for the rural side rather than a small voice in a big town.
