Ok, just so I understand. You are planning on splitting New Hartley down the middle? With half of the populous moved to Newsham ward & half staying in Seaton Valley? Which means that when the parents are applying to put their kids into the local schools a situation may arise where you have New Hartley parents driving their kids (so more cars on the road at rush hour- if they are lucky enough to have a car) to Newsham, and Newsham parents doing the reverse journey. If there is an incident that requires parish council intervention you are bound to have one councillor saying it's not their responsibility as it crosses the boundary line, and the other saying the same. I have experienced this first hand with a similar boundary line at Holywell when trying to get a public bin. It's just a typical example of council staff twiddling their thumbs with nothing better to do. Leave them as they are. End of.
