

Essex

Personal Details:

Name: [REDACTED]
Email: [REDACTED]
Postcode: [REDACTED]
Organisation Name: (Member of the public)

Comment text:

Related subject: Essex

Once some districts in Essex became unilateral - except perhaps those within the Greater London Assembly area - it destroyed the structure for the rest.

The whole of the UK needs to have civil parishes.

Tiptree boundaries are simply wrong - Tolleshunt Knights where I live should be within the same District as Tiptree , especially as much of what became Tiptree in 1934 was actually previously in Tolleshunt Knights - leaving TK dismemembered with no real connection to anywhere apart from Tiptree and certainly not the misnamed Maldon District Council.

I have a fair knowledge of the make up of MDC due to previously working for a public organisation that provided services throughout the whole of Essex with my focus primarily being on people living in the Dengie Hundred.

We need proportional representation and annual elections to keep up interest in the decision making throughout the districts.

I am exceedingly pessimistic about there being any positive changes because it suits those in power in Essex to have as little electoral activity as possible

Attached Documents:

None attached