In proposing to change the boundaries of the village Oxshott and incorporate the two halves of it into different areas and do away with the name of Oxshott you would be destroying a community that has existed for hundreds of years and impacting on the mental health of its residents.

Oxshott is a village with its own identity and this consultation has not reached its residents. The day before the deadline for response and I know of almost no-one that has heard about it. You would be taking away our identity as its residents and I believe this would have a major detrimental impact on the mental health of people who live in the village.

Having living in Oxshott between 1975 to 1991 and then returning to my family home last year, the community atmosphere of the village is a pleasure to experience.

Oxshott is a landmark destination. As I have met people over the years and people have asked me where I come from, when I say Oxshott, they know it. They have driven through it. The fact that a main road runs through our village should not be grounds for using it as boundary line to eradicate its existence.

There isn't any reason justifiable to make this decision and without proper consultation where the local community properly understand what is being proposed, it cannot happen.
