The proposal to split Old Town Beaconsfield into Gerrards Cross not only shifts the most historic area of Beaconsfield including the Parish church, market, sports clubs and key arterial road access into town outside of Beaconsfield residents control, but takes the conservation area too. The Gerrards Cross constituents simply will not care about continued road congestion, noise, road pollution along the A355 (where we already have unresolved building issues and a dead end roundabout). Nor will it care about the Hall Barn estate (major landowner in Old Town area) dormant proposal to monetise the area through parking fees, and new builds. Beaconsfield needs to fall within Beaconsfield boundaries to enable a say on how it is managed. To split half the Old Town out will quickly lead to the destruction of the community, the security of the infrastructure and open floodgates to yet more building with no consideration of Green Belt, and services not being kept in step with growth of this busy area. In real terms, the new boundary leaves local residents and services in hands of those whose main priority is growth and protection of their own back yard, not the interests of Beaconsfield. The map may appear to be annexing a bunch of roads into Gerrards X ward, but it proposes cutting off half a community who deserve a say on their own environment. The same principles apply to Knotty Green end of Beaconsfield in terms of representation.
