From your own (commissioned) document, High Wycombe Lcwip consultation draft, it is apparent that the population densities per ward are unequal, even taking account of the 4 different sized wards in the unparished area of (Chepping) Wycombe. Terriers is slightly less populated but soon to be inflated by the Terriers development, similarly the Ryemead and Micklefield ward will accommodate the Abbey Barn developments (3 councillors for a projected 11421 residents while Tylers green has 3 for a projected 6937). So, we are already under represented as a town. If you have to merge wards, it would be logical to do so with the rural ones. Their residents have very different concerns from urban residents. It would therefore be very wrong to merge urban and rural wards.
