Locks Heath as it is now has been like it for well over a hundred and twenty years. and now a jumpped up twat wants to try and change history. And i thouhgt history could not be rewritten. the church which is part of Locks heath would no longer be part of Locks Heath under this stupid idea. With the current affairs as they are.. your plans would mean local Businesses be it a one man outfit or larger would have to spend out on new headed paper and addvertising meaning unecasary cost to them during already difficult times then the thousands of residents that would need to change address with dvla, banks and others too. and as for splitting church Road straight down the middle what are these people on that think of these stupid ideas. my family and them before them and myself have lived in Locks Heath all our lifes. i will always live in Locks heath no matter What the jumpped Twat who thought up this stupid idea thinks. so to put it simple Locks Heath stays as it is and the church which is the oldest building in Locks Heath our local church shall remain in in the parish of Locks Heath and NOT be part of titchfield. i was always taught if it aint broke dont try to fix it. one very anoyed Locks Heath resident
