Comment text:

Moving Ranvilles lane, fair acre rise middlemead, ingleside harcourt road templemere from the "avenue " to the Meon is not constitutional. It puts us into an area which is not highly congested when we are in reality the border of the highly congested area of Fareham's "avenue" district - this change will mean the airfield can now claim they are legitimately flying over countryside rather than built up areas. Ranvilles lane was designated to be in a built up area until the new circuits were introduced and the new route to the airfield implemented we started complaining & since then we have been told we are not in a built up area - that way they can justify their lack of care towards residents . The strange shape of the border clearly shows this to be the case . This is the area they constantly fly over when they miss the circuit This is deliberately punishing those who are objecting to FBC and it's plans for the airport expansion.
