The Local Government Boundary Commission is the independent body that draws these boundaries. It has reviewed East Hertfordshire to make sure councillors will represent about the same number of electors, and that ward arrangements will help the council work effectively.

The Commission has published final recommendations for changes in East Hertfordshire. It says residents should be represented by 50 councillors. This is the same as the current arrangements.

Those councillors should represent 26 wards, four fewer than there are now. There will be six three-councillor wards, 12 two-councillor wards and eight single-councillor wards. The boundaries of most wards should change; three will stay the same.

Publishing the recommendations Professor Colin Mellors, Chair of the Commission, said:

“We are very grateful to people in East Hertfordshire. We looked at all the views they gave us. They helped us improve our earlier proposals.

“We believe the new arrangements will guarantee electoral fairness while maintaining local ties.”

75 people and organisations made comments to help decide the new wards. Changes in response to what local people said include:

- Datchworth & Walkern ward renamed to Aston, Datchworth & Walkern, based on local evidence received
- The inclusion of Hormead parish into Buntingford ward to better reflect local community identities

The Commission has made further changes to its earlier proposals. Details can be found on its website at <https://www.lgbce.org.uk/all-reviews/eastern/hertfordshire/east-hertfordshire>.

Parliament now needs to agree the changes. The new arrangements will then apply for the 2023 council elections.

The Local Government Boundary Commission for England is an independent body accountable to Parliament. It recommends fair electoral and boundary arrangements for local authorities in England. In doing so, it aims to:

- Make sure that, within an authority, each councillor represents a similar number of electors
- Create boundaries that are appropriate, and reflect community ties and identities
- Deliver reviews informed by local needs, views and circumstances
