I live in Finchampstead North and am happy with the boundary and those of adjacent wards - though I think a better name could be devised for Wokingham Without. I think there was a proposal to call it Pinewood some years ago, which seemed a good idea. What I do find strange is the inclusion of wards in the Wokingham BC area that are not a natural fit at all. Those to the west of the River Loddon (Shinfield, Hawkedon, Maiden Erleigh, Loddon, Coronation, Sonning) are obviously a part of Reading rather than Wokingham and those to the north (Charvil, Remenham Wargrave and Ruscombe) are surely a more natural part of Henley. The area of Wokingham is thus a strange cobbling together of parts that naturally identify as Wokingham, with parts of other towns tacked on, which has the effect of artificially boosting the size of Wokingham Borough.
