What benefit will there be from erasing the current parish boundaries and names and pooling it into one name which has always been a derogatory term? The Nedge as an area has never had a good name or reputation and to a lot of current 30 year olds it was the place your mother told you never to go to! The current parish names and boundaries are indicative of their physical area. The Nedge is a boggy valley, the name of a hill and a potential mass housing site. If the number of councillors is not going to change and there is only a desultory increase in the Forcasted Electorate - why not leave well enough alone?
