Alexandra Road being moved to Bargate North along with other roads in Freemantle seems a bit strange. There was some spiel about a ward having an identity and a shared community. How does that work then? If you actually go and walk around you will note that Alexandra Road, Landguard Road etc are some way from the Polygon on foot. Two very distinct communities. I don't mean the people I mean the distance between the roads being moved from Fremantle and put in Bargate North. Seems a silly idea.
