New wards will mean more expenditure. Derby is the most strategic location of cities, yet its being avoided like the plague. Even those who live here, spend their money outside of Derby. London Road, the main direct link into the city is disgusting. The city centre is derelict, dirty with buildings looking like the twilight zone. Not one good designer dress shop or shoe shop. No wedding shops. All the quality local enterprises gone. No good restaurants! Poor quality food in restaurants all over the city. The next thing is that there isn't one good hotel in the city. Everything is substandard. Why on earth you have 7 Lidl's in such a small city? The Council has lost its way. Parking charges are exorbitant. I will be honest. I used to go to the city centre at least 2 times a month. Now I go twice a year. One visit is to go to my optician. For shopping, my friends and I go to Nottingham, Birmingham, York, Edinburgh and other places too. We want a city to be proud of. The city was ruined with the construction of the monstrosity West Mall. What happen to our markets? We voted you to build not destroy our City. Who will benefit from having more wards? Only a few privileged ones. Too much politiking. Enough is enough. What message are you sending about Derby? I'm utterly, utterly aggrieved.
