As a resident of [REDACTED] I feel very much that we are in Hove, not Brighton. We are a largely residential area and served as closely/conveniently by Hove Station and George Street shopping area as we are Brighton station and town. Merging the wards/blurring the boundaries will leave the residents here worse off when it comes up to be considered alongside issues that affect more central Brighton. We area very densely populated area, with a mix of a transient population (as evidenced by the woefully low vaccination rates in this specific area) and very wealthy people/2nd home/absentee landlord types in historical buildings and as such need to be able to have the attention of our MP, who is aware of the complex needs of the local population. For voting at a general election, I don't want to feel my needs as a resident of Hove will be overlooked by being lumped into a larger boundary with the results of people who are being commercially motivated closer to the centre of Brighton. I am very disappointed that this is being proposed and strongly object to this recommendation to remove Brunswick as a ward.
