To whom it may concern, I fundamentally object to the proposed changes to the Patcham Ward with a significant portion of the Ladies Mile Estate moving to the Hollingbury and Carden Ward under this proposal. When I moved to Patcham in 2015 we moved to a community, a community represented by the local people who had good knowledge of the issues that effect the area in which we live. Very happy and established in Baranscraig Avenue, our children consider themselves as part of the Patcham community, they play football for Patcham United, they attended Patcham Infant School and now attend Patcham Junior school. They are not residents of Carden and Hollingbury and I struggle to understand how there issues and concerns would be represented fairly and accurately alongside the refined boundaries being proposed here. Historically, the area in which we live was part of the Ladies Mile Estate, Patcham. These boundary changes ignore this historical consideration in which the community we live in was established in Patcham, not Carden or Hollingbury. My family and I love visiting Brighton Museum and seeing the detail of how our community was established - a change to the boundary and movement of the Ladies Mile Estate to the Hollingbury and Carden Ward under this proposal ignores this heritage and undermines our rich history that underpins our community. I recommend that this boundary change is rejected and our valuable Patcham community is protected. [REDACTED]
