I do not agree with the proposed changes to Patcham boundaries. Patcham has been a village in it's own right for many many years. With lots of history. Westdean to the West off Patcham across the A23 is apart from Patcham. Hollingbury and Carden to the East off Patcham has always been included in Patcham. The main part of Patcham the older area where I have lived in Craginair Avenue for thirty three years has always had a unique village feel. Sharing in lots of communityfunctions, services,groups,schools,shops, and local issues should stay represented together with the council in a single ward. Thus enabling a more effective and convenient representation for the residents of Patcham and Hollingbury. Keep Patcham as it has always been.
