These plans are nonsensical: cutting Patcham in half completely undermines our city's history. Patcham is a village in its own right and should remain intact. Westdene is divided from Patcham by the main road. If you are looking for logical divisions, leave the boundaries as they are. Everyone is happy with them and these proposed changes seem to just be for the sake of it. Dividing this completely illogically (as these proposals are) will also affect schools and access to schools. Travel is already difficult for many children but these areas may increase that challenge. Rather than focusing attention on where the boundaries are, please focus on caring for the communities in the city and supporting us with local improvement. The communities that exist are happy and do not need these alterations. Instead, they need the support of councillors in improving the opportunities and environments within the area. Changing an invisible boundary is not going to do that so please abandon these plans and consider talking more directly to the communities instead.
