The proposal to change the boundaries of Patcham are unbelievable and show a complete lack of understanding of the community, it’s history as well as its geography. Patcham is a defined area because of the nature of the topography with the Ladies Mile Road, Nackie Avenue and Barr Hill all meeting at the bottom of the valley near the Ladies Mike pub and hence down to the Old London Road where the Coop store is. We have nothing to do with Westdene which is across the A23, a huge divide. I would be happy to show people around Patcham, to show that it is a distinct area and any attempt to change its boundaries would not be in the interests of Patcham.
