I live just 2 minutes up from the Patcham schools on Ladies Mike Road, opposite a Mackie Park entrance and find it very disappointing that we will be included in the Hollingbury/Carden ward. It doesn't make sense - we are part of Patcham, we bought our house in Patcham and want to remain part of Patcham with councillors who represent our area. I have not seen any good reason for this to change. We are a Patcham community - my children go to the local Patcham and we come together as a community. Why now is our road being divided up and we now become part of Hollingbury? I totally object. I'm sure it will have an affect on house prices and any devaluation will rest solely on the council.
