Comment text:

Patcham and westdene split is very odd - having lived in both, they are vastly different areas and the natural boundary between the two is the a23/London Road, definitely not Braybon Avenue upon which I presently reside and would be in the Westdene and Patcham half. Much of the area in the new hollingbury carden ward is Patcham, hollingbury is quite a small area and carden is just a road really, it runs through both Patcham and hollingbury! The Preston park ward changes make sense - this is another area I have lived in and the current withdean ward runs far too far into Preston, which is itself a well established and ancient part of Brighton.
