I live in Marchamley which is a small rural village situated between Whitchurch and Market Drayton. We currently sit within the North Shropshire boundary which has worked well for residents in this area, we are part of Shropshire and have many links within the community across Shropshire both in farming communities but also in approach to process and practice and the businesses that service our community. We do not wish to be on the boundaries of Telford where our connection to the community would be limited and our residents would be isolated. Our rural villages have little commonality with larger towns within Telford and surrounding areas and this does not seem the correct fit for the sake of dividing areas into the correct number of places, surely this is the least of the considerations. It must be noted that house insurance and house prices of properties moved from SY postcodes will also be adversely affected, who will compensate for this if it goes ahead? I very much object to this proposal.
