Comment text:

I am commenting on the Cullercoats and Whitley Bay ward name and boundaries Whitley Bay and Cullercoats are two distinct communities with their own identity and culture. To lump them together does a disservice to those places and does not reflect its sense of place and identity. Inevitably one name comes before the other which in the eyes of residents gives a sense of the more important of the two communities even if it is not meant that way. You are slicing through communities that have there own sense of identity like the areas of pedestrianised streets around Algernon Place. Those people living around there say they will feel cut off from each other.
