Related subject: Widdrington Station and Stobswood Boundary change

I live in this area and while I can understand the need to change boundaries due to various reasons I don't see how splitting a village straight down the middle can be beneficial to any decisions or political make up for the area going forward. Surely the whole village needs to be in the same political voting area so that the majority political views of the whole village are represented and reflected, not half of it. I don't see how the village as a whole will be able to argue political points or put arguments / requests forward if it's split in half. This could lead to conflicting interests from wider areas that are not necessarily associated to the needs of the village itself and in the best interests of the whole village.
