Related subject: LGBCE draft proposals for new divisions in Surrey

I represent a local residents association that has councillors that sit on Elmbridge Borough Council. We are extremely concerned about the suggested changes set out in LGBCE's most recent consultation paper re new divisions in Surrey and its proposals in respect of the division of Hinchley Wood, Claygate and Oxshott. If implemented this change would remove Oxshott from that division and would divide it up between two divisions of Esher/Claygate and Cobham. We do not understand the logic for this as Oxshott, like Hinchley Wood and Claygate, is a village in its own right. Our association further questions the perceived bias raised by this proposal that appears to have been actioned based on the representations of one political party. Any changes must not only be fair but be seem to be fair.
