Related subject: Pershore and Pinvin

I would like to make sure Pershore and Pinvin stay together. There is no strategic gap between the two. They face each other so are basically merged. The schools in Pinvin are linked by catchment area to the new estates built in Pershore. There is a railway line/station in between Pershore and Pinvin. Pinvin looks south toward the station and Pershore looks north. The railway is a central hub for the two. I would also keep Pinvin linked to Throckmorton and Bishampton as Pinvin would be surrounded by the proposed new Throckmorton development.
