I think when making decisions about boundaries/wards etc it is important to look at how some of these areas, especially Shirley as a whole, have altered. It may appear small on the map but with the recent new builds etc the population has dramatically risen over the last few years. There are more multi occupancy dwellings now including retirement homes with over 500 apartments in one building. There have been several large housing developments including Lucas Green as well of an influx of people from Hong Kong. The population in Shirley is rising but there are still the same amount of schools/medical services etc. All residents have access to the High Street, Parkgate, Sears Park for retail plus Shirley Park, Hopes Coppice etc for recreation.
