Removing a large swathe of the Stroud central area that includes Horns Road (where I own a house) and putting it with the Bisley and Painswick area does not reflect populations of similar demographics or interests. They are very different areas - the current Trinity ward is densely populated residential area with much of the Bisley and Painswick area being very rural. To do this simply to even up numbers of electorate because of another boundary changing elsewhere makes no sense. How can Stroud hospital be in Bisley and Painswick? The people of Stroud need to be able to choose councillors to represent them on Stroud matters. I strongly disagree with this proposal.
