I am rather shocked at the inclusion of Stroud Trinity as an offshoot bulge on the map into Bisley and Painswick. We are in the middle of Stroud town pretty much for all practical and cultural purposes and not even on the outskirts whereas places that are perhaps on the outskirts have been included. It is a short walk into town. We have key town amenities on our road and in our ward including the hospital, the graveyard, a church a local pub, a well used local park. It is in no sense a part of Bisley and whilst I understand the need to even out numbers this is a bizarre territorial "snatch" of a part of Stroud town that cuts a populated road in 2 ion a place where there are better natural boundaries and extremely unwelcome as I don't see how anyone can properly represent our interests if this happens. It is also daft to make town, district and county council non contiguous. It is complex enough as it is. These proposals are unworkable and unhelpful.
