There is no comparative mapping indicating existing and proposed boundary changes upon which to make properly informed comment. Text descriptions of changes are generalist and unclear. The consultation should be re-run so that residents may make informed comment on the proposals. As no wards currently fall into the 30% variance category and changes to wards such as Birkdale are noted as being based on future development, which may not occur, the changes are premature. The additional area understood to being incorporated into Birkdale ward is traditionally viewed as part of Kew.
