I strongly object to changes proposed to the boundary line. I live at The Old Forge in Gorse Green Lane on the Belne Brook. This was the second mill of the historic scythe making industry that Belbroughton is well known for. Isaac Nash lived in the cottage above me. If these boundary changes take place it is breaking up part of the history of Belbroughton and being put in an area that has nothing to do with the scythe making history. I'm sure that King Charles would object to any of the royal palaces have their history split by the boundary commission. My neighbours children will have further to go to school thereby the local carbon footprint increases Please leave the boundary alone.
