Related subject: Number of councillors

I feel 46 councillors is way too many for Middlesbrough, the council have overspent for a number of years now and need to look at cutting costs. The number of councillors should be cut which in turn will cut the expenses costs.

I would say a maximum of 30 councillors for the town would be sufficient. I also feel more public consultations need to be done for any major projects within the town and open it to all of the Middlesbrough public not just the ward it affects. The councillors also need to be more accessible to the public by holding regular drop in surgeries whether this is as a group of neighbouring wards or as individual wards.
