Related subject: Thanet Villages - Minster in particular

The existing ward of The Thanet Villages are just that: the villages of Thanet. These individual villages have been discrete entities in their own right and share that commonality of what villages have always been. Each has its own Parish Council but one has had thrust upon it a huge amount of new housing in a greater volume than most other parts of the Thanet towns. It is most important that the Thanet Villages continue to be represented as one single ward as the needs of villages are nothing like what the needs of the Thanet towns are. So in that respect an existing village should not be joined with a town ward if that is a possibility as the villagers will always lose out. Villages need to maintain their special identity.
