We currently live in the Bollinbrook area. At present we are represented as part of "Tytherington". I've never thought this made any sense given we are separated by the river bollin. This means I rarely use any of the roads, shops etc over there. If we need to go to a shop we would go to the Upton or the one at west park drive both of which seem to be in Broken Cross and Upton. Our primary school is also linked to the high school over that direction rather than the one in Tytherington. Traffic problems from the broken cross, the Upton or central Macclesfield also affect us but likely have no impact whatsoever on Tytherington residents. We are a forgotten unrepresented area at the minute with no say on the surrounding area that actively affects us but lumped with a place across the river I only drive through to try and avoid traffic! I'm sure Tytherington residents wouldn't consider us a part of their area either.
