I have lived in great coates for nearly 30 years. My son went to the great coates nursery in the village and junior school in willows. We use the willows shops, wybers estate shops and pub. We use the willows community centre. We walk round all 3 estates most days. They are well linked and a very integrated community. To suggest otherwise is to show a complete ignorance of the grass roots community of the area. To suggest carving up the area because there is road between one of the three areas is not a great argument. Great coates has always been annexed to willows with walkways linking them. We do not wish to be pushed into another county just to allow the local conservative led council the upper hand in the chamber. You should be aware that this is a political attempt to wipe out local independent councillors who have rightly demanded transparency in local decision making and financial planning. There is a strong local community that is aware of the local conservative/ Lib Dem shenanigans and do not want this to happen. Please consider this carefully and do not take the decision being put forward as a true record of opinions locally
