Related subject: Aire Valley and also Skipton

I believe the proposals for Aire Valley make reasonable sense as they represent a coherent community and adding Carleton to this division makes more community sense than dividing a part of Glusburn from Cross Hills.

I am less convinced by the community logic of the arrangements for Skipton. Instead of that community having councillors that clearly speak for it there seems to be a very messy addition of more rural areas which don't share a coherent set of interests to bits of an artificially divided Skipton. I can't see the community logic in putting Thornton in Craven in with Skipton North and Embsay whereas there is now little physical separation between Skipton and Embsay so these areas do share some commonality of interest.
