This proposal has vastly reduced the population of Penrith and the projected growth. Penrith will grow in population as there are 100's of new homes on many new sites being built and will be populated with underrepresented voters in the upcoming elections. The Carleton area new builds have for the most part been completely completed and have had people move in, both locally and from distant parts of the country (Kent, London, South West etc.) this will mean that the number of Westmorland and Furness councillors will represent a higher number of Penrith voters than their counterparts in the rest of the unitary authority. As Penrith has grown in population which means that the number of people paying council Tax has increased means that they are not getting their fair representation in the local government. Saddleback view alone has planning permission for 220 new homes will mean at an average of 3 adults per house will be 660 new voters being added to the tally.
