Hello

Since the government want more people in our villages and towns in north Yorkshire, should you be more looking into more councillors for the council.

A example of this where was suggested putting Leeming Bar with Aiskew and Bedale, well it was all in Hambleton District council and yes the A1M does split them of sorts but the Rail line splits them more and Aiskew is almost built upto the Rail line and Leeming Bar start there if from that end.

I see there is no mention on Northallerton in this change but the spread of houses and boundaries of settlements to settlements where do you say is one place for one parish to the other how far can a boundaries town sign be placed before its taking village land.

Since you done Middlesbrough question for you Newby in North Yorkshire near Stokesley sits on the the boundary of Middlesbrough with Coulby Newham and Hemlington both creeping up the boundary and the B1365 is all that splits it should you make it harder for, or move North Yorkshire boundary to say the A174 or back to the Tees and see if North Yorkshire can do better for South Teesside.

Middlesbrough to grow south before Newby Seamer and Stokesley all become part of Middlesbrough if haven't already.
